Mayor Michael Brown describes Grand Forks, ND as a place “nestled in the Red River Valley and home to the best family-friendly, high-tech, vibrant college town you’re going to find.”

Unfortunately, over 30% of the residents of this college town identify as “none” when surveyed regarding religious preference and there is little to no reformed preaching in Grand Forks. In addition, population growth is expected to top 20% in the next ten years. Now is the time to plant a church in Grand Forks.

To that end, the Siouxlands Presbytery is partnering with the Midwest Alliance to plant the first PCA church in Grand Forks. With God’s help, the hope is to see this first PCA church in Grand Forks make disciples who will then help to spread the gospel, multiplying praise to God and planting churches throughout the region.
