NoMeanCity.com identifies Irvington, Indiana, an Eastside neighborhood about 10 minutes from downtown Indianapolis, as a unique historic area with residents who are deeply committed to their community. A local resident describes Irvington as an “it”

community, “From the bizarre to the sublime, the East side has it.”

Unfortunately, having “it” does not necessarily include a growing relationship with God. From 2010 to 2017 those who identified their religious preference as “none” increased over 5%, a rate even greater than the U.S. as a whole.

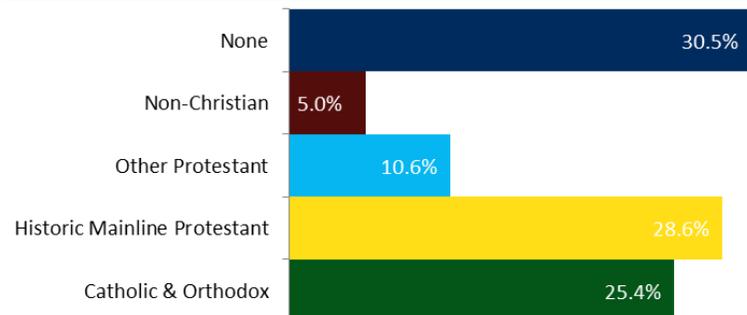

Given this trend, the Central Indiana Presbytery is partnering with the Midwest Alliance with the hopes of planting a PCA church in Irvington.

The mission of the Midwest Alliance is to see PCA churches and presbyteries in the Midwest working together to plant and grow healthy and reproducing churches while the Central

Indiana Presbytery exists as a regional church to extend God’s kingdom by strengthening existing churches, planting new churches, developing leaders, and caring for pastors. With God’s help, their hope is to plant a church in Irvington that will bring the hope of the gospel to the “nones.”
