Mableton is currently the largest unincorporated community in Cobb County, Georgia, but the South Cobb Alliance is working to change that. A bill has been filed to incorporate Mableton. The proposed boundaries of the new city would border Austell to the west and Smyrna to the east. It's southern boundary is the Cobb County line. The proposed city would include Pebblebrook and South Cobb high schools as well as Six Flags Over Georgia and have a population by one estimate of about 80,000.

The Alliance's purpose is to make sure the area thrives in economic growth, education, philanthropy, public safety, the arts, and infrastructure. Christ Community Presbyterian Church in Kennesaw hopes to see the Mableton area thrive in yet another way: spiritually. With more than 45% of the people in Cobb County identifying as "none" when asked their religious preference, Christ Community sees a great need that they hope to meet with a church plant.

More comprehensively, Christ Community will be working with other PCA churches in the area to begin a church planting residency program that they hope will aid the growth of the Kingdom not only in Mableton but also in surrounding communities.
